(1) The right conferred by section 14 of this Act is not infringed by any act done for the purpose of

- (a) avoiding the commission of an offence; or
- (b) complying with the duty imposed by or under an enactment;

so, however, that where the author or director is identified at the time of the relevant act or has previously been identified in or on published copies of the work, there shall be a sufficient disclaimer.

PART VI
EXCEPTIONS TO INFRINGEMENT OF COPYRIGHT

Preliminary

51. Definition of “sufficient acknowledgement”.

For the purposes of this Part, “sufficient acknowledgement” means an acknowledgment identifying the work in question by its title or other description and identifying the author, unless

- (a) in the case of a published work, it is published anonymously or the author has agreed or required that no acknowledgment of his or her name should be made;
- (b) in the case of an unpublished work, it is not possible for a person to ascertain the identity of the author by reasonable inquiry.

General Exceptions

52. Research and private study.

Subject to section 55 of this Act, fair dealing with a copyright or related rights work for the purposes of research or private study does not infringe copyright in the work or, in the case of a published edition, in the typographical arrangement.

53. Criticism, review and reporting.

- (1) Subject to section 55 of this Act
 - (a) fair dealing with a copyright or related rights work for the purposes of criticism or review of that or another work or of a performance of a work; or
 - (b) fair dealing with a copyright or related rights work, other than a photograph, for the purpose of reporting current events;

does not infringe copyright or related rights in the work so long as it is accompanied by sufficient acknowledgment.

- (2) No acknowledgment shall be required in connection with the reporting of current events by means of a sound recording, audio-visual work or broadcast.

54. Non-commercial user-generated content.

(1) It is not an infringement of copyright or related rights for a natural person to use an existing protected work which has been published or otherwise made available to the public, for the creation of a transformative work in which copyright subsists, and for that transformative work to be used for non-commercial purposes including the authorising of internet intermediaries to disseminate it.

(2) Acknowledgment of the source of the existing work shall only be required if it is reasonable in the circumstances to do so.

(3) Where use of the transformative work becomes monetised or is otherwise deemed to be commercial, the exception under subsection (1) does not apply.

(4) Use of the existing work must not be substantial and should constitute fair dealing, taking into account the factors that are outlined in section 55.

- (5) For the purpose of this section
- (a) “internet intermediaries” means a person or entity who regularly provides space or means for works or other subject matter to be enjoyed by the public;
 - (b) “non-commercial” means that the newly created work does not adversely affect or compete with the exploitation or potential exploitation of the pre-existing work by the owner;
 - (c) “transformative” means the creation of a new work with a different purpose or character that is not a substitute for the existing work; and
 - (d) “use” means to do anything that the owner of copyright has the sole right to do under this Act.

55. Determining fair dealing.

For the purpose of determining whether an act done in relation to a work constitutes fair dealing, the court determining the question shall take into account all factors which appear to it to be relevant, including

- (a) the nature of the work in question;
- (b) the extent and substantiality of that part of the work affected by the act in relation to the whole of the work;
- (c) the purpose and character of the use; and
- (d) the effect of the act upon the potential market for, or the commercial value of the work.

56. Private use.

It is not an infringement of copyright or related rights in a work for a person to reproduce a work or any substantial part of a work if

- (a) the copy of the work from which the reproduction is made is not an infringing copy;
- (b) the person legally obtained the copy of the work from which the reproduction is made other than by borrowing or renting it;
- (c) the person did not circumvent any technological protection measures to make the reproduction; and
- (d) the person has only made one reproduction of the work and uses it for his or her own private purposes.

57. Backup copies.

(1) It is not an infringement of copyright or related rights in a work for a person who owns or has a licence to use a copy of the work to make a single reproduction of that copy

- (a) solely for backup purposes in cases where the copy is lost, damaged or otherwise rendered unuseable;
- (b) the copy used for the reproduction is not an infringing copy; and

- (c) the person did not circumvent any technological protection measures to make the reproduction.

(2) If the copy used to make the reproduction becomes lost, damaged or otherwise rendered unuseable, the reproduction made subject to this section replaces the copy owned or licensed by the person.

58. Incidental inclusion of protected work.

- (1) Copyright and related rights in a work shall not be infringed
 - (a) by its incidental inclusion in an artistic work, sound recording, audio-visual work or broadcast; or
 - (b) by the distribution of copies of the playing, showing, or communication to the public of anything whose making was not an infringement of copyright by virtue of paragraph (a) of this section.

(2) For the purposes of this section, a musical work, words spoken or sung with music, or so much of a sound recording, audio-visual work or broadcast as includes a musical work or such words, shall not be regarded as incidentally included if it is deliberately included.

59. Temporary reproductions.

The temporary reproduction of a copyright or related rights work shall be permitted where all of the following conditions are met

- (a) the reproduction is made in the process of a transmission of the work or an act of making a stored work perceptible;
- (b) it is caused by a person or entity that is authorised to make the transmission of the work or to make a stored work perceptible, or the use of the work leading to the temporary copy is permitted by law subject to this Part of the Act; and
- (c) it is an accessory to the transmission or making perceptible that occurs during the normal operation of use of the work and entails the automatic deletion of the copy without enabling the retrieval of the work for any other purpose than those referred to in subsections (a) and (b) above.

Use of Work for Educational Purposes

60. Acts done for purposes of instruction or examination.

(1) Copyright or related rights in a work shall not be infringed by being copied in the course of instruction or of preparation for instruction, if the copying is done by a person giving or receiving instruction and is not by means of a reprographic process.

(2) Copyright or related rights in a work shall not be infringed by it being copied by making an audio-visual work or audio-visual work's soundtrack in the course of instruction, or of preparation for instruction, in the making of audio-visual works or audio-visual work's soundtracks, if the copying is done by a person giving or receiving instruction.

(3) Copyright or related rights in a work shall not be infringed by anything done for the purposes of an examination by way of setting the questions, communicating the questions to candidates or answering the questions.

- (a) reproduced;
- (b) communicated to the public; or

61. Anthologies for educational use.

(1) The inclusion in a collection intended for use in educational establishments of a short passage from a published literary or dramatic work shall not infringe copyright in the work if

- (a) the collection is described in the title and in any advertisements thereof issued by or on behalf of the publisher, as being so intended;
- (b) the work was not itself published for the use of educational establishments;
- (c) the collection consists mainly of material in which no copyright subsists; and
- (d) the inclusion is accompanied by a sufficient acknowledgment.

(2) Section 61(1) shall not authorise the inclusion of more than two excerpts from protected works by the same author in collections published by the same publisher over any period of five years.

(3) In relation to any given passage, the reference in section 61(2) to excerpts from works by the same author

- (a) shall be taken to include excerpts from works by him or her in collaboration with another; and

62. Recording of broadcast by educational establishments.

(1) Subject to section 62(2), a recording of a broadcast or a copy of such a recording may be made by or on behalf of an educational establishment for the educational purposes of that establishment without infringing the copyright or related rights in the broadcast or in any work included in it.

(2) Section 62(1) shall not apply if, or to the extent that, there is a licensing scheme certified pursuant to section 107 for the purposes of this section.

63. Restriction on reprographic copying by educational establishment.

establishment for the purposes of research, private study or instruction without infringing any copyright in the work or in the typographical arrangement.

(2) The reprographic copies made pursuant to section 63(1) shall only be allowed where

- (a) the copy does not exceed five per cent of a literary, dramatic or musical work or one chapter, whichever is the lesser; and
- (b) the act of reprographic copying is limited to an isolated occurrence, and if repeated is for separate and unrelated occasions; and
- (c) no more than a single copy for each student and the teacher is made.

(3) Copying shall not be authorised by this section if, or to the extent that, the work in question is commercially available on the St Christopher and Nevis market within a reasonable time and for a reasonable price, or where licences are available authorising the copying in question and the person making the copies knew or ought to have been aware of that fact.

(4) Where a licence is granted to an educational establishment authorising the reprographic copying of passages from any published literary, dramatic or musical work, for use by the establishment, then, any term of that licence which purports to restrict the proportion of work which may be copied, whether on payment or free of charge, to less than that permitted under this section shall be of no effect.

64. Subsequent dealings with authorised copies.

(1) Where a copy of a work is an infringing copy if its making is not authorised under sections 60, 62, or 63 of this Act and the copy is subsequently dealt with, it shall be treated as an infringing copy for the purposes of that dealing, and, if that dealing infringes copyright, for all subsequent purposes.

(2) In section 64(1), “dealt with” means sold, or let for hire or offered or exposed for sale or hire.

- (b) shall not, in such cases as may be prescribed, make or supply a copy to any person in the absence of a declaration by that person.

(3) Where a person requesting a copy makes a declaration that is false in a material particular and is supplied with a copy which would have been an infringing copy if made by him or her, that person shall be liable for infringement of copyright as if he or she had made the copy himself or herself, and the copy supplied shall be treated as an infringing copy.

66. Supply by librarian of copies of published work.

(1) The librarian of a prescribed library or archive may, if the prescribed conditions are complied with, make and supply

68. Replacing copies of works.

(1) The librarian of a prescribed library or archive may, if the prescribed conditions are

- (a) any necessary repayments or further payments shall be made in respect of charges already paid; and
- (b) the reference in section 106(1)(a) to the charges payable in accordance with the order shall be construed, where the order is varied by a later order, as a reference to the charges so payable by virtue of the later order.

Factors to be Taken into Account in Certain Classes of Cases107. General consideration: unreasonable discrimination.

In determining what is reasonable on a reference or application under this Part relating to a licensing scheme or licence, the High Court shall have regard to

- (a) the availability of other schemes, or the granting of other licences, to other persons in similar circumstances; and
- (b) the terms of those schemes or licences;

and shall exercise its powers so as to secure that there is no unreasonable discrimination between licences, or prospective licensees, under the scheme or licence to which the reference or application relates and licensees under other schemes operated by, or other licences granted by, the same person.

108. Licences for reprographic copying.

Where a reference or application is made to the High Court under this Part relating to the licensing for reprographic copying of published literary, dramatic, musical or artistic works, or the typographical arrangement of published editions, the Court shall have regard to

- (a) the extent to which published editions of the works in question are otherwise available;
- (b) the proportion of the work to be copied; and
- (c) the nature of the use to which the copies are likely to be put.

(1) This section shall apply to references or applications under this Part relating to licences for the recording by or on behalf of educational establishments of broadcasts which includes copyright works, or making copies of such recordings, for educational purposes.

(2) The High Court shall, in considering what charges, if any, are to be paid for a licence, have regard to the extent to which the owners of copyright in the works included in the broadcast have already received, or are entitled to receive, payment in respect of their inclusion.

110. Licences to reflect conditions imposed by promoters' event.

(1) This section shall apply to references or applications under this Part in respect of licences relating to sound recordings, audio-visual works or broadcasts which include, or are to include, any entertainment or other event.

(3) Nothing in this section shall require the Court to have regard to any condition in so far as such condition

- (a) purports to regulate the charges to be imposed in respect of the grant of licences; or
- (b) relates to payments to be made to the promoters of any event in consideration of the grant of facilities for making the recording, audio-visual work or broadcast.

111. Licences to reflect payment in respect of underlying rights.

(1) Where a reference or application under this Part is made relating to licences for the rental to the public of copies of sound recordings, audio-visual works, or computer programmes, in considering what charges are to be paid for a licence, the High Court shall take into account any reasonable payments which the owner of the copyright in the sound recording, audio-visual work or computer programme is liable to make in consequence of the granting of the licence, or of the acts authorised by the licence, to owners of copyright in works included in that work.

(2) Where a reference or application under this Part is made relating to licensing in respect of the copyright in sound recordings, audio-visual works or broadcasts, in considering what charges should be paid for a licence, the High Court shall take into account any reasonable payments which the copyright owner is liable to make in consequence of the granting of the licence, or of the acts authorised by the licence, in respect of any performance included in the recording, audio-visual work or broadcast.

112. References to the specific matters not to exclude relevant considerations.

References in sections 107, 108, 109, 110, and 111 to the specific matters to which the High Court is to have regard in certain classes of cases shall not affect the Court's general obligation in any case to have regard to all relevant considerations.
